James Bowie was an iconic figure in the early American West. He was an entrepreneur, politician, and soldier.

Bowie survived major wounds during the famous Vidalia Sandbar fight in 1827 and went on to join the Texas Revolution against Mexico where he died with David Crockett and William Travis at the Alamo in 1836.

This class will examine the life and times of Bowie, and students will learn how to use the big fighting knife given Bowie's name by knife makers and those who used it throughout the 19th century.

Comfortable workout clothing including long sleeved sweatshirt, safety glasses, men must wear an athletic cup. Also suggest forearm pads (soccer shin pads) and light leather gloves, such as work/gardening gloves.
